ROLLING

BY A YELLOW FIEND

Pretty Miss Toby Maltreated in a Rock-ing Chinese Den.

DECEYED AWAY BY A GIRL

Daisy, Who is Only 17, Heard the Singing of Christian Songs in a a Pell Street Mission. Wandered in and Told Her Story.

New York, July 30.—In that strange locality of Mott and Pell and Doyers streets, where the Joss house stands, where whites meet Chinese on even footing, where every house reeks with the odor of burning opium, where every human being is a mystery—in Chinatown, as it is called, the denizens live on in squalid wretchedness, or depravity or crime, heedless of all the world, besides and unheeded by the millions who never seek below the surface. Sunday night, about four weeks ago, religious services were held upon the top floor of 12½ Pell street, a building in which many white women live with Chinese husbands.
George E. Woolfe of 140 West 20th street, an ex-policeman who had taken up missionary work in the slums, was reading the Bible, and a dozen inmates of the house were seated around him listening, some in amazement, some impatiently, a few seriously and with sympathy. Hearing the door open, Mr. Woolfe looked up and saw a young girl enter the room.

He had often been in that house, but had never seen that face before. She hardly seemed to be more than 15 years and everything about her showed that she had not lived long in Chinatown. Mr.
Woolfe asked her to sit near the organ.
When the reading of the Bible was over, the organist played a familiar hymn in which some of the women joined. The girl's voice, sweet and clear, rang out modestly among all the discord that filled the room.

When the service was over, the girl seemed anxious to depart, but Mr. Woolfe detained her and questioned her. It was her second day in Chinatown.

"How did you ever come into this place?" he asked.

"I met a woman in Doyer street last night who brought me here, and they kept me over night."

"Do you want to go away?"

"Oh, I don't care whether I stay here or not."

It took a long time to draw from her the whole story. She was 17 years old and her name was Daisy Toby. Her father, who was a widower and an invalid, lived at 430 South Fifth street, Williamsburg.

He had sent the girl to work as a domestic, but tiring of her work and meeting one of her friends, a wild girl who had left her home, she was induced to come to New York. Her friend took her to a lodging house at 15 Bowery, where she slept for two nights.

"Then she wanted me to go into a room with a lot of men," the girl said to Woolfe, "and I refused. She told me to clear out then and I walked along the streets. I went into a mission at 16 Doyers street, where a woman asked me if I would like to learn typewriting. I said I would like to learn it very much, and she brought me here. A Chinaman gave me something to drink, and I fell asleep and didn't wake up until this afternoon. I feel sick now, but I don't care. I heard singing in the house and so I came up here."

The girl was quite pale and seemed to be in a stupor. It did not take Mr. Woolfe 10 minutes to enter the room where she had passed the night, gather her clothing in a bundle, brush three burly Chinamen aside and leave the building with the girl's hand in his. He brought her to the Wetmore Home for Friendless Girls. She suddenly became ill, and Mr. Woolfe learned the full story of her terrible experience. Physicians were called in, but she grew worse. Peritonitis set in, and it was advised that she be taken to St. Vincent's hospital.

She is in St. Vincent's hospital now, and the doctors believe she will die. Mr.
Woolfe found her father and sent him to see her. The police are looking for the woman who brought her to that Pell street house, and for the Chinaman who assaulted her.

IMPALED BY A WAGON POLE.

James F. Foyle Was Unconscious of the Approach of Runaway Horses.

PATERSON, N. J., July 30.—James F.
Foyle, an agent of the Metropolitan Insurance company, was standing with his back against a frame building at the corner of River and Mulberry streets, about 8:30 o'clock this morning, reading. A team of horses, frightened by an electric car, dashed down River street. In crossing West street, William Mills, a liveryman, who was driving, lost control of the horses, and jumped from the wagon to save his life.

The vehicle struck a telegraph pole, breaking the harness. This added to the fright of the horses, and they rushed headed for the corner at which Foyle was standing. He was so interested in his paper that he did not see the horses.

As they neared the corner, one of the horses pulled up River street, and the other tried to go up Mulberry street, and both crashed into the building, impaling Foyle on the wagon pole. It pierced his chest, and one of the horse's heads broke his nose.

A bystander ran to the man's assistance and backed the horses away from the house. Foyle fell to the pavement dead.

IN HARD LUCK.

Not Only Arrested, But They Were Released to Helena.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE STANDARD.

MILES CITY, July 30.—James Humphrey and George J. Voelckers, aged 23 and 19 years, were brought down from the Crow agency this morning upon a charge of stealing 32 head of horses on the 14th, and they had a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Kreidler.

They were bound over to await the action of the United States grand jury and were taken to Helena to-night by Deputy Marshal Haley. United States Attorney Leslie was here and prosecuted the case, there being six complaints of horses having been stolen that had been taken from that number of Indians. The arrests were made by the Indian police and the prisoners had the horses when caught.

E. T. Kempton of Terry was brought to this city last night to have his right collar bone repaired, it having been broken by a horse falling on him yesterday.

SOLDIERS GOING HOME.

California Is Peaceful Once More With Few Exceptions.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 30.—The state troops are withdrawing from the field in northern California. The several companies of the Fifth regiment and Second artillery regiment vacated Oakland this morning. They left behind, however, a military guard of about 100 men to preserve order in the railroad yards.

At Sacramento the six companies of the Eighth regiment broke camp this evening and started for their homes. The state troops at Dunsmuir will be held there for an indefinite period. United States Marshal Baldwin having reported the strikers are still in a mood to make trouble.

Strong forces of United States regulars are still on duty at Sacramento, Roslin and Truckee. There is no probability of their being withdrawn for several days.

IT WAS A CORKER.

A Storm that Swept West Hampshire Towns.

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 30.—From 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon until this morning this city was entirely cut off from the outside world by telegraph and telephone as a result of the most disastrous storm in this section in years.

At Lake Massabesic, four miles from the city, the cyclone wrecked buildings, blew down large trees and destroyed much property.

There were scores of pleasure boats on the lake and it is feared some did not reach the shore. Two small steamers were unroofed and another wrecked. At Goffstown ballstones as large as walnuts fell.

So far as learned no lives were lost, although several persons were injured seriously.

DOWN AN EMBANKMENT.

Unknown Persons Do a Dastardly Deed in Tennessee.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 30.—Last night unknown persons wrecked the fast mail and express train on the Alabama & Great Southern road at Tronton, Ga. The switches were opened and the engine and express and mail cars were thrown down the embankment.

The passenger coaches were derailed, but no passengers were hurt.

Express Messenger Stuart and a colored porter were seriously injured.

Dear Gresham:—One more boon I crave, I trust in your affection.

And so a package I must have Of Parks' Tea for my complexion."

Gresham's Answer to Queen Lil.

When I received your cablegram
